

Being a camp counselor is a tough job. Adding “tools” can make it easier to reach all of their kids. These activities (some classic, some new) have become very popular at camps all across the country:

FourSquare

Bouldering Wall (requires no spotters or ropes)

THE most popular new game: GaGa (Israeli Dodgeball)

Corn-toss

Tetherball.

Boatmaking (sailed in a shallow plastic-lined pond).

Camper-built “Mini” Golf (get it?)

Checkers (“Ooh! You can use black rocks, I’ll use white!”)

Remember "Lanyard" or "Gymp"?

"Carpetball" is hugely popular, (like shuffleboard on a 16' pool table)

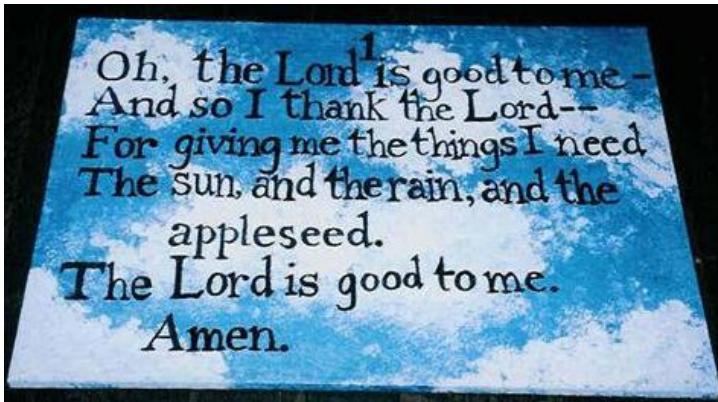

Still the most requested sport

Nerds flock to it; jocks are fascinated to learn.

Even badminton is still popular with kids.

Two of the classic rituals of camp are still important today for creating a sense of belonging: Singing graces at meals, and singing around the campfire.
